

Resources for Students/Researchers

American Psychological Association

APA Formatting

<http://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/560/01/>

An APA formatting and style guide put together by the Online Writing Lab by Purdue University for those writing and citing sources within the social sciences. This resource has been revised according to the 6th edition, second printing of the APA manual and offers examples for the general format of APA research paper, in-text endnotes/footnotes, and the reference page.

APA Citation Generator

<http://citationmachine.net/index2.php?start=&reqstyleid=2&newstyle=2>

The citation machine helps students and professional researchers to properly credit the information that they use in a more time-efficient manner.

APA Style

www.apastyle.org/apa-style-help.aspx

Sponsored by the American Psychological Association and useful for referencing the Publication Manual put forth by APA, this resource provides answers to frequently asked questions regarding APA style, a free tutorial on the basics of APA style as well as topic-specific help.

Research Databases

National Institute for Mental Health

www.nimh.nih.gov/index.shtml

The National Institute for Mental health is dedicated to transforming the understanding and treatment of mental illness through research. This website is useful in providing information for researchers as well as providing mental health information for the general public.

American Psychological Association

www.apa.org/

The American Psychological Association is a useful resource for everything from grant information to providing resources regarding various psychology topics.

American Psychiatric Association

www.psych.org/

The American Psychiatric Association is a science-based and patient-focused association with information on psychiatric practice, education and career development as well as research currently being conducted by APA.

Family Research Center

www.uncg.edu/frc/

The Family Research Center was founded to contribute to the understanding of positive family relationships and the role of families in children's development by means of fostering collaborative research and communicating the results of their research in order to enhance families' lives and inform the decisions of policy makers.

US Department of Health & Human Services

www.hhs.gov/

The US DOH is dedicated to protecting the health of all Americans and providing essential human services, especially for those who are least able to help themselves and also provides access to grants/funding.

Administration for Children & Families-Office of Planning, Research & Evaluation

www.acf.hhs.gov/programs/opre/

OPRE is responsible for increasing the effectiveness and efficiency of programs to improve the economic and social well being of children and families. OPRE also provides links to research projects under a variety of different areas while also providing access to papers, presentations and instruments to aid in research.

Society for Research in Child Development

www.srcd.org/

The Society for Research in Child Development providing access to publications on Child Development, monographs and a report on social policies being developed. In addition to this, SRCD also provides help in writing for lay audiences.

National Institute of Child Health and Human Development

www.nichd.nih.gov/

The National Institute of Child Health and Human Development provides health information along with research being conducted at ICHHD and resources for researchers.

National Resource Center on Domestic Violence

www.nrcdv.org/

The National Resource Center on Domestic Violence (NRCDV) is dedicated to improving society and community responses to domestic violence and, ultimately, prevent the occurrence of DV by providing free, comprehensive and individualized technical assistance, training, and specialized resource materials and projects.